LECTURE ON OTHELLO.

Dr. Edgar C. Abbott Delivers the First One of His Series

Dr. Edgar C. Abbott of Boston delivered his initial Shakespearean lecture last evening at the beautiful new home of Judge and Mrs. Orlando W. Powers. Dr Abbott commenced his lecture by saying ne would not try to personate any one he would not try to personate any one character in the tragedy, but try and show the powerful, though half-civillzed, character of Othello, the barbarian. Othello is one of the deepest of Shakespeare's tragedles and in every way did the lecturer bring out this idea. His deep dramatic voice portrayed intensely the passions of the Moor, though softened into the pleading tone of the wronged Desdemona.

the pleading tone of the wronged Desdemona

The principal point the lecturer kept before the audience was the contrast between lago, the highly educated gentleman of Venice, who has lived always in a sphere of vice, and Othello, the passionate half-civilized man, who has not learned how to curb his feelings, Othello dies a tragic death, but far more honored is he than the living lago in his deceit and mistrust.

The love of Desdemona is beautiful, so trustful, but Othello has not the true faith and trust in her that she places in him, therefore her tragic death.

Dr. Abbott was splendid in the death scene, as well as his interpretation of the preceding conversation between Othello and the faise lago.

An enthusiastic and large audience greeted Dr. Abbott. The second in these series of lectures will be given tomorrow evening at the home of M. H. Walker, when the doctor will lecture upon "The Merchant of Venice," one of the most popular of Shakespeare's plays.

PERRY S. HEATH AGAIN IN ZION

He Talks of His Trip to Old World.

Was Entertained in Cairo by Former Utahn, Judge Van Horne.

Judge Has a Charming Young Wife, a Texas Girl, and a Cosy Home.

After an absence of nearly one year Perry S. Heath, former publisher of The Tribune, arrived in Salt Lake yesterday He is a perfect picture of health, and ac cording to his own statement, never has he felt better in his life. His stay in Salt Lake was limited, as he left over the Salt Lake & Los Angeles road last evening for Milford, where he will join former Senator Kearns and the Hon. David Keith. He will return within a month however, and spend some time in this city looking over his business interests and renewing old acquaintances.

His First Real Vacation.

"Yes, it is the first real vacation I have ver had in my life," said Mr. Heath, as he boarded the train last night and left for the south. "All my previous so left for the south. "All my previous so-called vacations have generally lasted for about a month and invariably I have taken my business right along with me. This time, however, I did not and during my absence, lasting one year all but three weeks. I have been a free man. I have simply been out to enjoy myself and I did. Free from the rush and worry of business I have been able to get twelve long hours of sleep out of every twenty-four, and as a consequence I have gained thirty pounds in weight. Yes, the vaca-tion has been worth while.

Two Months in Egypt.

"During my absence I traveled over considerable of Europe, and even found time to journey into Asia and Africa. Two mouths of our trip was devoted to pleasure and sight-seeing in Egypt and about the same length of time was spent on the Italian lakes. Italy and, her beautiful cities occupied considerable of our attention, particularly Florence and Rome. From Italy we made a short journey to Palestine, where we spent about one month.

Entertained by Judge Van Horne.

"While in Egypt we were entertained by Judge Van Horne, who was appointed Judge of First Instance to the Interna-tional court of Cairo by President Mc-Kinley at the request of Ex-Senator Kearns. Judge Married Texas Girl.

Judge Married Texas Girl.

The Judge, you know, is married. He has a charming young wife, who & a.native of Texas. While at Paris brushing up his French he met the young lady who was there studying the language and other arts. A warm friendship sprang up, but nothing serious happened until the two met later at Alexandria. Their meeting here was like that of old friends, and according to both so pleasant and mutually happy that they decided to make it permanent. Mrs. Van Horne is a woman of considerable property and remarkable culture.

Has Cosy Home Near Coing

Has Cosy Home Near Cairo.

"The Judge has a cosy home located about nine miles from the city in a suburb where all the prominent members of the court of Cairo have their homes He also has a magnificent office in the Judiciary building of Cairo, which is the most costly public building in Africa, and far outstrips buildings of like character at our own national capital.

Is Very Successful.

"The Judge is meeting with spiendid success in his new field. He is proficient both in French and Arabic and consequently has an advantage in his work, which he has managed so well that he has won the professional respect of all the diplomats at the court. He is roundly admired and holds a prominent place in the highest social circles of Cairo."

No Thought of Business. When asked as to how his Sait Lake business investments were coming, and as to whether he intended to invest any more money in this city, he smiled as if to say, "I thought I told you that I haven't thought a thing about busines for twelve months." During his short stay in Salt Lake yes-terday Mr. Heath was visited by several of his old friends and was entertained at luncheon during the afternoon by Mrs. Thomas Kenna
